She spent the last ten years exploring both her love for music and working with people, leading singing workshops and teenage-seminars worldwide. Her life-long passion for music and devotional singing deepened in India where she studied the ancient art of Drupad with world-known vocalist Ustad Sayeed'uddin Dagar, from "the Dagar Brothers". In '99 she started recording her own album, collaborating with Dutch-born musician and producer Bhakta who studied and performed extensively worldwide, including India - Japan - Europe and Australia. Disha and Bhakta have created a truly unique album combining authentic ethnic-world recordings, trip-hop and alternative beats with the ancient poetry of Jalal'uddin Rumi, Rilke and her own beautiful lyrics. Inspired by the contemporary vocal styles of Beth Orton, Sarah McLachlan, Lamb, Sade and Everything But the Girl, and enriched with her worldwide adventures, this album is an ongoing love-affair. Innocent, sensual, contemporary and with a deep gratitude to existence, Disha sings her song on "Drowning in Grace". This CD includes a CD Rom music video filmed in Byron Bay.
