BONEHENGE is Hugh Fraser's new 9 member ensemble featuring 4 trombones, bass trombone, piano, bass, drums and percussion. The name was coined by Fraser and partner in bass clef crime, Brad Muirhead while in Banff to represent the powerful and often mystical and ancient sound this unique instrumental grouping achieves. Unlike other trombone based groups, Fraser's compositions include African, Latin and European forms that invoke the full contemporary musical spectrum now expected from improvising ensembles in addition to the always present excitement of the brassy swing that is the foundation of BONEHENGE. The highest compliment Fraser has received from new listeners to this ensemble is that the group presents "a great total musical experience", not just a jazz specialty item. Fraser has had years of experience for this format, but this will represent the first concerted focus in performing and recording for this ensemble. He led a similar group called Slide Area in N.Y. City which featured Fraser and Robbin Eubanks while regularly rehearsing and performing in Greenwich Village in the early 90's. More recently, Fraser was invited to be the only Canadian jazz trombonists to tour, write and record with the worlds leading N.Y. based trombone ensemble, Slide Hampton's World of Trombones -check out "Spirit of the Horn" MCGJ Records 1011 BONEHENGE will make a mark as Canada's contribution to jazz by extending the parameters of such an ensemble while reaching a wide variety of music lovers. This uniquely thrilling brassy ensemble has recorded 9 of Hugh's most diverse compositions to create a sonic feast like never heard before! In addition to Fraser on trombone and composition,

BONEHENGE boasts jazz trombone greats Victoria's Ian McDougall, Vancouver's Dennis Esson and Brad Muirhead, New York's Rod Borrie; and Vancouver rhythm section players Ross Taggart piano; Ken Lister Bass; Dave Robbins drums and Jack Duncan on percussion.
