Details: With his new EP, CacheFlowe explores the experimental side of dubstep and glitch hop. Collaborations with Machinedrum, Starkey, and Brer Rabbit from the Flobots add to the unique sound of the release. A heavier take on his glitchy beats, Cache, Stacks Queues represents CacheFlowe's return to a sound that could be called dance music in some circles. True to his own style, the EP provides lots of surprises amidst the head-nodding beats. Mashing up idm, dubstep, hip hop, funk, drum and bass, trip hop, experimental, jazz and techno, CacheFlowe creates genre-skewing electronic music that has received much acclaim from local and international press. Producing with a computer since 1996, he's honed an original style that's defined by stuttery, complex breakbeats, deep analog basslines, techno-flavored synths, organic instrumentation and contorted samples. Working on the same laptop performance since early 2004, CacheFlowe's live show is a fast-paced smorgasbord of chopped breakbeats and analog synths on 8 channels of audio. He bobs and weaves through an array of electronic genres and tempos, using nothing but sounds and loops from his own productions. Having played 30 live shows just in 2007, he's established himself as one of the premier electronic musicians in Colorado. Appearing on official record label releases alongside the likes of Twine, Ladytron, Daedelus, Ulrich Schnauss, Starkey, Machinedrum, ISAN, Submerged, Fog, and sharing the stage with Amon Tobin, edIT, Machinedrum, Dizzee Rascal, Mochipet, Jeff Parker (Tortoise), DJ Olive (MMW, Sonic Youth), Nels Cline (Wilco), Filastine, Nick Argon, pH10, and countless local talents, CacheFlowe continues to freak the beat in new and exciting ways.
