Rut-O-Rama Songs Details: Picture this: a subliminal moment. You're sifting through a stack of recent cd releases. Row after row of this week's pop culture clones, and then you're caught by surprise. The image is familiar. Perhaps a little too familiar. First you smirk then you chuckle to yourself. The image is you. A victim in a cubicle with a look of pure resignation. The title says it all: "Rut-O-Rama". The band name, Wits End. You must hear it immediately. You buy it, you put it on. It's a revelation. From the brief intro, Cubicle Blues straight into the freedom cry of Karoshi (a japanese term for overworked employees) the tunes take you on a singalong journey through the workplace. A somber subject perhaps? Not with Wits End at the helm. From the happy hour anthem, Better than Nothing to the vacation deficit charge of the title track, Rut-O-Rama, every tune attacks your senses with melody so fine and hooks so intact you may need a permanent vacation. Wits End hits the point home with this clever and fascinating collection of pop tunes recalling the golden age of pop/rock. Wits End was formed in the Conejo Valley region of Ventura County, CA and consists of songwriters Tom Robinson (vocals rhythm guitar) Joe Peters (bass), Carl Britton on drums, and lead guitarist producer Ted Scarlett. Wits End is a mixture of classic guitar pop with first rate songwriting with a vibe all their own. A rarity in this age of disposable pop.
