Details: Buleras, Tangos, Alegras, Soleares, Seguiriyas, Tarantas, Granadinas. Great flamenco styles from the chico to the jondo are featured on Andy Culpepper's debut album. All with a very personal style and mucho duende. Andy Culpepper was born and raised near Ithaca, NY. He picked up the guitar at the age of 16 and began to devote himself to mastering all styles of guitar playing, from classical to the blues, before settling on Flamenco as his ideal mode of expression. While attending the University of the Arts in Philadelphia, Andy studied with the master guitarist Tito Rubio, a student of the great Juan Maya Marote. Andys style incorporates elements of both modern and traditional Flamenco, while always striving to maintain the purity and depth of this beautiful art form. Among his greatest influences are Paco de Lucia, Moraito and Pepe Habichuela, as well as the singers Camarn, Fernanda de Utrera, and Pastora Pavn.
