Honest, cosmic, progressive country music from this edgy, soulful r&b-injected singer/songwriter with his own imprint and authentic yet straight ahead and professional delivery. 12 MP3 Songs COUNTRY: Americana, COUNTRY: Contemporary Country Show all album songs: Catalina Sunrise Songs Details: The response to Sean Hogans 1996 debut album over a decade ago was nothing less than spectacular! With a stylistic sound that some industry observers have described as dangerously balanced between alt-country authenticity and modern rustic pop appeal, his first album release immediately caught the attention of country radio programmers and listeners across Canada. Their reaction earned him the first-ever C.C.M.A. Independent Male Artist of The Year Award in 1997. Since then, Hogan has become one of the highest profiled Canadian singer/songwriters performing his own brand of Country and Roots music in Canada, as well as in parts of the U.S. and Australia in recent years, and has had an astounding seventeen music videos aired on CMT Canada promoting those songs. Though Hogan loves to play live, and has become fond of saying Go ahead call me, Ill rock your stage. The singer says he is motivated by the satisfaction of tapping into a song idea, finding its true spirit, carving out its continuity, and creating a song that reaches people with its story as well as its sheer emotion. He has tapped into that vein more than once with such songs as Angeline, Catalina Sunrise, Vulnerable, Centered, A Cowboys Heart, Tired of Leavin, Id Rather Have You, Silver Lining Girl, and What Would You Have Me Believe just to name a few. Hijacked, Hogans second album, along with his third Canadian CD Late Last Night, won two consecutive West Coast Music Awards in 2001 and 2002, each in the category of Best Country Album. In 2003, Hogan won C.C.M.A.s Roots Artist of The Year, the first Independent artist to win this prestigious award. Hogans self-released U.S. Americana debut, Ruled by Mercury, went Top 30, making it to #24 on the AMA Americana Chart in January of that year, during Hogans self-organized tour in Australia. The following year, Hogan personally planned and launched the Canadian Country Christmas Concert tour, which he affectionately has called my baby. In conjunction with Country radio, the event assists communities across Canada with funding for food banks, hospital foundations and other essentials for those in need. In 2007 Hogan will be teaming up with World Vision on his national tour. The first tour was inspired by one of Seans songs with ponders the question, Why not live the whole year through like its Christmas time? To-date, the effort has raised over $40,000 for non-sponsored charities throughout Canada, this good will earned Hogan the S.C.M.A.s 2005 Humanitarian Award. Among other events in 2005, Sean toured Canada coast to coast released and promoted his 4th album Catalina Sunrise . This also fincluded performing live at Nashvilles Bluebird Cafe, and filming his 17th music video, A Cowboys Heart, in the Arizona desert. Hogan won 3 more industry awards in 2005, including the Saskatchewan Country Music Award for Male Artist of The Year and Video of The Year. Catalina Sunrise, a seminal album, won 2nd place position in the January review of The Best Albums of 2005 with the internationally distributed Country Music News. Another track off the album, Conspiracy Radio, began raising attention in the U.S. on the late night talk radio show, Coast-to-Coast Arm. Hogan spent much of 2006 stateside recording his 5th Country album, Southern Sessions. In 2007 Hogans success was back on mainstream Country radio with his debut single from Southern Sessions called What Would You Have Me Believe, and again gaining industry Roots artist accolades with a nomination for Roost Artist of the Year, at the 2007 CCMAS in Regina. He also was included earlier in the year on In Tune Saskatchewan 2007 compilation CD. Chosen out of over 200 submissions to be one of 19 on the JUNO disc was his song Shangri La , the In Tune cd produced in partnership with SaskMusic. Hogans new U.S. Americana follow-up album Conspiracy Radio is scheduled for early 2008 release. Track Hogan down for the Festival scene in 2008. Go ahead call him hell rock your stage.
