A touch of Reggae, a bit of Pop, a little of Soul, a taste of Hip-hop, a feeling of Latin rhythms. These songs, created in the last few years, represent a cross-over in the various music styles of our world. "Free easy" is the latest song added to this album and maybe the one song showing a kind of a new style and writing direction of the next album. It doesn't matter if you experience these two musicians on a stage with a big band or just in an acoustic set the perfect match of their voices and the power of the lyrics capture various kinds of audiences. While Wasu was already performing with Andy Brown and Tobias Ariketa as well as with his own band, playing the bass, keyboard and acoustic guitar and got also his first Number One Hit in Zimbabwe, Nicole was looking for new challenges, moved to Germany and started taking singing classes. She speaks about 5 languages and she says " I enjoy writing lyrics and playing around with melodies and harmonies". They met on one of their musical paths in 2004 and a big change was suddenly taking place. They started writing new songs together ("I can't write without a beat"..says Wasu) and performed on all kinds of stages in order to get to know each other inside out as musicians. Enjoy!
