Details: It's no coincidence that Tiffany Green is one of the fastest rising artists on the urban gospel scene. Versatile, effervescent, and a minister in her own right, this Chattanooga-native has been singing since the age of two and sweeping talent shows and audiences since she was five. Tiffany Green! Versatile, effervescent, and a minister in her own right...Tiffany has traveled the South performing several hits including "Can't Wait", "Thou Will be Done", and the latest neo-soul hit song "Glamorous." To hear her cutting edge, uplifting, worship in song. "At about age four, I started to listen to the radio and mimic what they did," she said. "My mom would sing a part and I would sing it back." That's no surprise when one considers the fact that Tiffany comes from a family of singers. "My whole family sings, my mom, my dad, my brothers, my cousins, and even my grandparents," she said. "My mom had a group and so did my father." Still, singers come a dime a dozen in Nashville, The Music City, where Tiffany currently resides, but it's Tiffany's ministry and message as well as her music that set her apart. This world traveling songbird has graced the stage as a background vocalist with the likes of Paulis Sanchez, Aaron Mason, and Isaac Simpson. She has also shared the stage with gospel soul recording phenomenas Lisa McClendon, Shay Norman, Leon Timbo, Nia Allen, J.R. from Crossmovement, and Virtue also Cynthia Jones, Tonex and James Fortune and FYIA. After patiently enduring the heartache of two bad record deals and unscrupulous management, she has teamed up with heavy hitter producers such as Roger Ryan, Bryant Russell, Jonathan Winstead, and Van Johnson for her self-titled debut project, Tiffany Green. Her project is a packaged culmination of cutting edge hypnotic beats exhuming soulful jazz, neo-soul, and R&B melodies combined with inspiring lyrics. I want to see lives changed, people set free, and for people to really understand their destinies," she said. "The purpose of my music is to bless all people through song and profess Gods goodness." Tiffany's music and ministry expand far beyond church walls and invade the streets. From the eclectic single Cant Wait, to the lyrically potent hip hop induced Get Free, and neo-soul infused song Glamorous, Tiffany adds a touch of rhythm and blues with beats from the streets to meet listeners in a place where they are ready to receive. "God has called me to be a witness," she added. "I feel like we make good music for the church and the unchurched. Her special mission is to also reach the youth and make music that is clean and holy that will draw their attention with beats and sounds they like." As a wife and mother, Tiffany understands and emphasizes to youth that dreams come through hard work, determination, and the blessings of God. "I only got to this point by trusting God and knowing that this is what I was born to do. It did look scary at one point because I didn't think it would happen for me but I realized that lifting up the name of Jesus is what makes me happy!" Lifting up the name of Jesus is exactly what Tiffany does in the infectious song of worship, Take Me To A Place when she cries, Take me to a place that Ive never been before. . . to a place that Ive longed for! With the voice of an angel and the fearless determination to take God's message and music to places it's never been, Tiffany Green is poised to ride the whirlwind of success to her divine destiny, and she can't wait!
