Details: I Started playing the piano at 13. It wasn't very cool to play piano as far as my friends were concerned, but I didn't care, I just wanted to be a musician. I have always liked to experiment and tried to write my own songs as soon as I could play a keyboard. My music heroes back then were Elton John and Billy Joel. I played in my first rock and roll band at 15 with friends at school. Been singing and playing in church for as long as I can remember. Later on I discovered other pop artists and listened a lot to The Beatles, David Bowie and Prince, though I would probably not now because the vibe of those artists just doesn't appeal anymore. I used to listen to recordings of special effects from TV shows and create my own audio effects from bits of audio discovered here and there. Always liked to hear something different as long as it worked within the album or song context. I also love classical composers especially Mozart, whom I have always seen as one of the greatest composers and musical thinkers ever. Praise and worship music is undoubtedly the main focus now, since God is the focus of my life. I believe that the spiritual edge that happens in music is most powerful when it is directed to Jesus Christ. But more than that if God really is who he says he is, surely he deserves a song of praise! The album Courage from heaven is about the battles of life. It is very honest statement about being a christian and at the same time feeling pain. Listen to a song like 100,000 years and you'll get the idea.
