Jascat incorporated his style of music from the foundation of the 70s-Grateful Dead to Al Green. Ive gathered everything I could from each one of those people and put it into my own style, the whole idea was to offer a fresh new sound and for people to take the passion that I have for my music seriously. Jascats music can be described as feel good soul music that tells stories of love, life experiences, and happiness. It is sure to make hips sway and heads nod. The first single, Here We Go has gained early support spinning on radio shows and in the clubs. It also was a crowd favorite when Jascat performed it at numerous concerts, including The Hollywood Reporter TV, music and film conference and the Billboard Magazine R&B/Hip Hop conference plus openings for Babyface, Ne-yo, Bobby Valentino, Ray J, Ginuwine, 112, and Jagged Edge. young age that he wanted to turn his talents of singing, songwriting and producing into a permanent career. In 2004 Mike Hanse, the owner of Butter Music, a budding record label out of Philadelphia, PA recognized Jascats undeniable gift and signed him. I really agreed with how he wanted to go about things, says Jascat of Butter Musics plans for the company and his career. It takes a lot more than talent to get to the place you gotta get to. His formula for success; devotion, determination and discipline joined with incontestable talent places him on the keystone of destiny and success. -----
