Randolph always liked to sing but never really got serious about it until he met a few friends in the United States Army. Having played in a few bands in Germany, and around Western Europe Randolph got a good feeling about singing in front of people and has never turned back. When Randolph returned back home from his military service, he put together a local band called Northstar Country Band. They performed in local clubs and honkytonks in Northern Maine. After a few years the members of the band went their separate ways and Randolph took a few years off from singing and performing out in public. About a year ago, Randolph Michauds wife Lisa Michaud wanted him to record an album, so Randolph started putting songs together and he could not think of a better thing to do than to do a tribute album to some of his favorite singers such as George Jones, Tammy Wynette, Jim Reeves, Merle Haggard to name a few. So in April of 2005 Randolph headed to the recording studio to make his first album titled ( Country Memories ) songs included on this album range from Jim Reeves to George Jones, Jim Majka of Northern Maine Sound Studios was the producer of Randolph Michauds first album. Http://fortkentvideo Lisa was not going to let Randolph quit this time and searched high and low for a music promoter for him. Lisa contacted many promoters and decided to investigate one particular promoter from Kodak, Tennessee. Lisa contacted Rhonnie Scheuerman who already had numerous independent artists she was promoting and agreed to listen to Randolph Michauds first album. A few weeks went by and Rhonnie Scheuerman of Rhonbob Promotions rhonbob decided that her management team would take and promote Randolph Michauds music. Since then Randolph Michaud has been
