The album is the follow-up to last years Dance With Me, of which Southern Vanity Magazine said, Rebecca Henricks career forecast is sunny and warm, not a cloud in the sky. Co-Produced with Mike McClain in Garland, TX and mastered by Bob Gentry in Tyler, TX, Sunday Morning is Henricks most adventurous album to date. Sunday Morning is Henricks fourth album. Three of her country singles made the Texas Top 50 Regional Radio chart. Four-time Dove Award winning singer/songwriter, Billy Sprague says, Rebecca sounds better than ever...the arrangements are so fresh. Technically pure and organic...but most of all, and this has always been Rebeccas forte...there is so much heart in her vocals. Billy, referring to a quote by Oliver Wendell Holmes, says: Most people die with the music still inside them. Rebecca is not letting that happen to her....keep singing songbird! When asked about the creation of Sunday Morning, Rebecca replied, "A few years ago, my mother was in the hospital battling ovarian cancer. She wanted to hear the old country hymns that she sang growing up, so, I played them for her on my guitar. After her recovery, I decided to create a CD of these classic songs. It was fun adding in a bluegrass twist to give these treasured tunes new life." Rebecca Henricks has a gift to write and sing songs that touch every generationinspiring hope and faith and bringing peace, said Robert Morris, Pastor of Gateway Church in Southlake, TX. Kanakuk Kamps President Joe White said,

"Rebecca's incredible heart and passion is the center of each song she sings. Her music is uplifting and her God-given talent shines on each note! God has truly blessed her with an amazing talent!"
