Sean and the Boys quickly built a reputation as the swinginest band in Houston and in Texas, cementing that reputation with the release of their first full length album, "Texas Hill Country," in 2003. Their first nominations for Best C&W Act and Best New Act from the Houston Press Music Awards soon followed. Since then, Sean Reefer and the Resin Valley Boys have appeared onstage with such Texas legends as Dale Watson and Wayne Hancock, and national acts like Dave Alvin and the Guilty Men, Big Sandy and his Flyrite Boys, and Junior Brown. In 2005, Sean and the Boys received their second straight nomination for Best C&W Act from the Houston Press Music Awards, this time winning the prestigious title. Sean has been busy singing all over the great state of Texas ever since, winning new fans in every honky-tonk, dancehall, and lounge he and the Boys play in. Currently, they are writing new material for a forthcoming, brand new full length release. Watch for them soon in your town. And bring your dancin' shoes; they'll wear 'em out for you soon enough.
