Eddie is also a in demand demo singer in Los Angeles and Nashville and has worked with the likes of Bob Doyle (Garth Brooks), Berry Gordy, Desmond Child, Diane Warren, Mountain Dew, Florida Marlins, Ford, Chevy, Nissan, Dodge, Los Angeles Boat Show, Radio Gets Results, and many others. Eddie has several songs in the new film "Jukebox California" arts crafts musical collage starring legendary record producer and songwriter Kim Fowley and friends, filmed by Roy Swedeen in the beautiful landscapes of Southern California's Inland Empire. Eddie appears in the film showcasing his singing and songwriting as himself and as "Big Orange The Backyard Ramblers" , abstract art, cooking skills and comedic personality. Eddie likes being a funny guy; in fact you may have caught him getting his chest waxed on an episode of "Jay walking" with Jay Leno on NBC one night. They played it four times, once in slow motion. Jay couldn't believe it didn't seem to bother Eddie, as Eddie replied after the rip, "Will this get me on Survivor?" Eddie has a very serious side to him too; you may have seen him on the NBC morning show Good Day L.A., promoting a peace concert dedicated to the 9/11 victims singing a song called "WHY", which he co-wrote with Grammy winner Wendy Waldman after the Columbine incident. *Special performance September 10th, NBC News 4, 11:00pm, 2005
