NOTTINGHAM EVENING POST REVIEW. Electraset: Terminus With 13 tracks of pure electronica dance mayhem pounded out at an inconceivable rate this really is an ear thudding release from the new noise superstars. Complemented with haunting synthesising and formidable vocals this offering is an eccentric melee. Storming opener Caf Inferno and keyboard heavy number Lonely Planet are both inventive examples of the style they clearly have. Maintaining a signature sound from beginning to end especially through booming number Holiday, Electraset are guaranteed to have the dance floors filled to the brim. Even for haters of experimental electro or anything in between this is still an infectious and pulsating release that is bound to get excitement and energy levels through the roof. If this release is anything to go by, Electraset are certainly ones to look out for. * MATTHEW SMITH
