One reviewer wrote: This is an album that grabs your attention from the first few notes of the opening track and holds you captive until the very end of the closing track. The Nine have put together a very solid collection of songs that are well written and produced. Synths and guitars are expertly mixed together for a modern brand of synthpop that is new and refreshing. The vocals are crisp and clear and the lyrics are top notch. It is a rarity today to find an album packed with quality songs that you can listen to straight through without wanting to skip over anything.
