...probably just an over-reaction to certain tv casting shows (original tone: an unknown fan) honest ,open, unscrupulous, completely unpredictable... Groovy beats as the basis for jazzy variations, sometimes with loops and drum 12 MP3 Songs JAZZ: Weird Jazz, ELECTRONIC: Breakbeat/Breaks Details: k3 anti-cast probably just an over-reaction to certain TV casting shows honest, open, down-and-dirty, absolutely unpredictable About k3 Herbert Knighofer (sax, flutes) Robert Kainar (drums, perc., electronics) Klaus Kircher (double-bass, e-bass, guit.) K3 have been referred to as the enfants terribles of the Austrian Jazz scene. With their fusion of acoustically and electronically generated beats and sounds, the three unconventional artists walk on a tightrope between pop and free jazz. Their genre-busting style oscillates between dub, trance, noise and drum and base and the three musicians boldly defy conventions and create a space for artistic freedom. In doing so, they play Jazz in its original meaning: crossing borders, pushing boundaries far out! - keeping aloof from clichs and mainstream, leaving the beaten track of academic, inane high-speed Jazz. Improvisation, spontaneity and humour are the main ingredients of the soup they cook up during their performances. Music emerges; it happens live - exclusively! k3 reinvent themselves with every performance. They alienate, destroy and recreate - and never remain the same. Their music contradicts reproduction and thereby allows the audience to experience a unique feeling of becoming part of the development of k3. Some may call it Jazz - we call it art, anyways! k3 - corners and edges - as a matter of principle! Previous Projects: K3 goes India - with Ranajit Sengupta on the sarode and vocals and Prabir Kumar Mitra on the tablas, both from Calcutta, India. New Years Programme: K3 plays Strauss Ganz in Weiss (All in White) Pop Song Parade with k3 K3- The Karaoke Show With guests: Karl Ritter, The Lumberjacks, Christian Wegscheider, Wolfgang Muthspiel, Gerry Dial, Nazide, Gottfried Stger, Ranajit Sengupta, Prabir Kuma Mitra, Dj Aegyde and many others.
