Their ensemble may look like a bluegrass band- theres a banjo, fiddle, dobro and other trappings- but you wont find any songs about mama or whiskey. 15 MP3 Songs FOLK: Progressive Folk, COUNTRY: Americana Details: The first live recording of Kate Lamont Blueprintmusic. This special CD contains previously unreleased material, arrangements of cover songs by the Beatles, Grateful Dead, Pink Floyd, and new songs that can't be heard elsewhere. Their ensemble may look like a bluegrass band- theres a banjo, fiddle, dobro and other trappings- but you wont find any songs about mama or whiskey. For Kate Lamont and Doug Sauter picking a genre has been a career long escapade, shifting from folk, to progressive folk to progressive rock, to bluegrass to soul grass to chamber punk and currently settling on FOLK. WORLD. AMERICANA. Kate Lamonts soulful vocals and poetic lyrics paint stirring images while Doug Sauters guitar and banjo playing is certainly the result of some Bela Fleck/Michael Hedges gene merge. Grover Parido, cellist extraordinaire, Matt Koher, vanguard mandolinist/ fiddler, and Ryan Deasy, celebrity bassist, create a split-personality string section that adds as much wild melody as it does tasteful restraint. Joshua Strodtman, dobro /African percussion, adds the world genre to the repertoire, playing his kit made of djembes, sangbans and a guitar case kick drum. Their instrumentation and arrangements are as complex as the most intricate symphony but far more accessible and melodic. They make elegant choices, giving their material wide appeal. Deft reflections of the human condition, Blueprintmusic songs are inspiring, heart-breaking, adventurous, peaceful. Who are they? A bluegrass October Project? A jazzed up Alison Krauss and Union Station? I give up. Just go and listen to their music. People who are interested in Pink Floyd The Beatles Grateful Dead should consider this download.
