Details: Michael Stern's most recent CD, We All Have Wings is an engaging collection of songs designed to help children have courage to be creative compassionate. The opening song, Coloring Outside the Lines (written by the late Tom Hunter) welcomes artistic creativity when we color or dance outside the lines, makes reference to civil rights leader Rosa Parks sitting outside the lines. Dont Laugh at Me reminds us not to tease or bully someone just because they are different. In a series of bright new originals, Stern encourages kids to recycle, to work out conflicts, to plant seeds in a variety of ways. He celebrates children learning to be friends while speaking different languages, knowing different faiths, and having different colors of skin. Featuring a multi-lingual chorus of kids voices, Schools, coles, Schule, Escuelas ... takes us on a journey to schools all around the world. My Brother Thinks He is a Chicken combines laugh-out-loud humor while honoring the fowl quirks we sometimes find within ourselves our families. This well-paced collection is woven with themes of kindness cooperation, supported by an array of voices, instruments energy that blend equal parts of fun inspiration. Stern has devoted the same thoughtful lyrical presentation outstanding musicianship to his children's CD as he has to each of his earlier recordings for adults. It features Grammy nominee David Lanz on keyboards, renown Seattle folk artists Greg Canote on fiddle, Doug Bright on accordion, Eric Smith on mandolin dobro, Michael Stern's vocals, banjo, guitar, plus a few very sweet vocal choruses by kids. This CD is appealing to all ages of children, to all ages of adults.
