Details: If you love instrumental music to listen to or help you through your day... ...if you're looking for a new interpretation of the sounds of the 80's... ...the Hobliminal Ibloid's Action at a Distance will impact you the way the title describes. "Whether the peace of my new born child (Lullaby); the excitement of a night out on the town (Red Paint); the military service of my brother-in-law (Believe); my past influencing my future (Action at a Distance), the energy of my music comes from the emotions I feel when contemplating the source of inspiration" - Hob The Hobliminal Ibloid (Hob) started as an enthusiastic amateur bass player for Rock bands in the UK and US. "Mordor" then morphing into "Oogie The Bantras Featuring The Hobliminal Ibloid". Hob's other career took him to the USA where he continued his music exploits with a three piece Rock and Blues trio: "The Hemlocks" who had success playing in and around NYC. Unfortunately, work, geography and family commitments lead to the band's demise. Hob now records using programable sequencers/drums as well as the electric bass and guitar. Hob, now sponsored by Putney Bridge Enterprises, has released his debut album "Action at a Distance". The Hobliminal Ibloid's music is registered with ASCAP and represented by Hobliminal Publishing. Hob started recording his electronic rock ambient instrumentals in 2000.
