Homemade clay drums beat, harmonicas wail, synthesizers flow under flute, sax, acid computer loops, phat bottom bass, all manner of unimaginable percussive effects. A bold, gallant, and fearless onslaught on all five senses spilling over into the sixth sense..." - Reviewed For TheFunkStore.com..By Funk Journalist&Atlanta Radio Personality"Bustin"Bob Mitchell "...electronic beats, swirling synthesized sitars (and maybe some real ones, too), Middle Eastern melodies, and a generally tribal vibe. One Global Village is an extremely original project, the apparent result of a democratic collaboration between dozens of people. And the sincerity behind the project is fully overwhelming." - by Jesse Jarnow for JamBands.com "This disc is full of uptempo, danceable tracks which make use of all kinds of interesting instrumental combinations, as well as chant-like vocals with often haunting melodies that stay with you long after the disc runs out." - by Roxanne Gary for JamSpace.net "Master drummer and percussionist Muruga is a man on a mission in One Global Village. His spiritual quest takes his band into complex, diverse musical forays meant to inspire a message of peace, faith and hope, meaningfully meandering through funk, rap, rock and free-form improvisation interlaced with a world beat." - by PT Quinn for the Ann Arbor Current BAND INFO: Muruga Booker has playing music since the 60's and has recorded/performed with Weather Report, Baba Olatunji, George Clinton and the P-Funk All Stars and was featured on "Blues from the Rainforest" by Merl Saunders which also featured Jerry Garcia.
