His guitar playing has a unique style as well from a complex Doc Watson style flat-picking to simple chords. He seems to play every note of a chord rather than to just strum. David picked up this button accordion and managed to play the same tunes his grandfather did all by ear. But David's first love was always the guitar. After being frustrated with guitar lessons he set out on his own trying to learn songs by ear, and self-teaching himself guitar. He has always believed to be the best in everything he enjoys, so in his music he tries to pour his heart and soul into it. Other areas of his expertise include computers, photography, scuba diving (instructor), and martial arts (Master level). He also studied African drumming with Master drummer Adetunji Joda (Olatunji and his drums of passion, Pearl Primus) while in Denver Colorado, and performed at his side for over 14 years; he is one of the very few people to learn privately with Adetunji; and was approved to teach the African drumming of the Yoruba tribe by Adetunji, and David taught African Drumming classes throughout the Denver area
