Should Be Good Songs Details: Many successful bands and artists begin in mediocrity, and are then polished and molded by a producer to fit industry standards. Then, there are the bands and artists who set industry standards - those who have something different and who bring change to the standards of modern music. Into the latter category a new band is born... Angel Down. Drawing from a various list of conjunct musical influences (from bands like Rush, Van Halen, and Osculate to less obvious artists including Elton John and Stevie Wonder), the boys of Angel Down make music that feels intimate yet is dissimilar anything you've ever heard. Listeners will not only be drawn to sing along with the irresistible melodies, but will also be putting their CD and MP3 players in REPEAT mode. Angel Down, composed of the talents of singer/bassist Glen Preece, guitarist Michael Olsen, and drummer Blake Paulson, are poised to become the "next big thing" out of the Los Angeles music scene. Check them out now, in the beginning of their musical journey...
