In other words, concept driven sound projects, which end up pushing modern trends. Electronica one could say. This current period of imagination, is titled, "People Sit In Cars" which is a collection of short audio pieces, constructed on top of vocal + single accompaniment, improvised one takers, with layers of electro, nylon 5 string guitars, object sounds, vocal harmony's and real drum sounds manipulated to suit each piece. Project Conditioning rules are defined before starting any tidy kid project, which helps to identify motivations, related to how the recording is to take place, how to transduce the sound and being at ease with restrictions in audio mixing and mastering. This debut project is based around a pretty pure signal chain, eliminating any negative concerns with the creation of sound. The Debut is titled People Sit In Cars, and has a release date worldwide for October 2006. Label support is growing in such countries as England, Norway, Japan, Germany, USA and Australia.
