An acoustic concert of guitar, voice, and violins. 19 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, ROCK: Goth Details: TONY WAKEFORD Paris 2002 CD Tursa Archive 002 Tony Wakeford's Paris features an accoustic concert of Sol Invictus songs recorded at the Theatre Dubois in November 1994. Accompanied by Nathalie Van Keymeulen and Cline Marleix-Bardeau, the unplugged Wakeford is not entirely solo, but this is a minimalist performance relying on the inherent strength of Tony's songs and his appeal as a 'singer-songwriter' (although that appellation usually conjures up a rather different image). The French audience is respectful rather than ecstatic, but this makes for a very clear recording that might have been made in a studio were it not for the polite applause at the end of each song. The material is from Tony's established repertoire, so is this collection worth getting? I think so, especially if you value the folk in neofolk. Here is someone singing his own songs and playing the guitar in front of a live audience and without benefit of loops, samples or programming. It's available directly from Tursa. Go on, you know you want it. Rik - 18 December 2002 Fluxeuropa
