This Bandidos de Amor first CD has a novo flamenco Pop Latin Festive, upbeat, and fun party music sound. 14 MP3 Songs LATIN: Flamenco, LATIN: Latin Pop Details: Who are these guys? They are, for lack of a more descriptive genre, a Latin/World Music group who perform what they call California Rumba. They mix in a little Jamaican Roots and Argentinean Folklorica as well as American Alternative Roots. This is a style quietly brewing in the clubs and cafes around southern California, and the south beach Miami area. Its a style influenced by the European and South American Rumba styles, but performed with the aggressiveness of an American pop/rock attitude. Their music is extremely infectious. The group sings in both Spanish and English. Their audience is international and intergenerational. They have performed very successfully in and around southern California for the past several years, as well as in New York, Florida, Hawaii, Utah, Las Vegas and Mexico. Their members have appeared in Films, Television, Radio and have also performed on numerous CD recordings of many well known artists from around the globe. Their members' compositions have been the soundtracks for film, television and radio programs. In 1997 he studied at the renowned Jazz Conservatory St.Gallen. After playing in over a dozen bands and recording an album with the rock band "The Minimalists" he moved to L.A. to attend the world famous Guitar Institute of Technology. In 1993 he enrolled at L.A.V.C. to study classical guitar, arranging and orchestration. Yussi began to play mandolin, banjo, oud and other exotic string instruments and in '94 developed a strong interest in flamenco guitar and the music of the gypsies. While Indian music guru Hari Har Rao tutored Yussi in the playing of the Indian sitar in late 1993, Narada recording artists Axiom of Choice invited him to join the band for their 1994 debut album "Beyond Denial". Yussi also developed a series of guitars with acclaimed luthier Boaz Elkayam and wrote the instructional book "Exotic Guitar". Bandidos founding members Yussi Django released their debut album "Bandidos de Amor" worldwide on X-DOT 25 in fall of 1995. Tracks from that album got placed on several compilations and movies. The same year saw Yussi also playing on Ricky Martin's hit record "A Medio Vivir" featuring the #2 song "Maria". He was soon asked back to play on Ricky Martins's Grammy winning "Vuelve". Yussi can be heard on Popstars' Eden's Crush's #1 album from the WB hit TV show of the same name. Yussi has written music for the Troma film "Rowdy Girls" starring Shannon Tweed and appeared in a Playboy production. "El Pirata", Yussi's debut as a solo artist, was released in 2000 and is followed up by his 2002 release "God of Six Shadows".
