Details: Chad Manion, formerly known as DJ Nalo, has found an interest in music his whole life. While enticed in all types of music genres, Chad found a particular interest in techno and dance music. Starting from scratch with nothing but Windows Sound Recorder he began cutting cool, rhythmic sounding beats and melodies from well-known songs such as Sandstorm. While creating these so-called masterpieces, Chad knew that the songs were not his own and could only take credit for the compilation. As he got older, he learned more about music and took a special interest in DJs. After discovering that he wanted to make the music, he decided to purchase several programs, such as Reason, and became a well-known music producer amongst his peers in the small town of Evergreen, CO. To this day, Chad is slowly working on getting his music out to the general public and becoming known amidst the U.S. and many countries around the world.
