story about two rappers trying to make it 17 MP3 Songs HIP HOP/RAP: Rap Details: Ever rising, ever fighting, ever overcoming, NO-ID'S Darrell Robinson, aka Mr Smuckas, and William Johnson, aka DJ Daddy D, put hip-hop on a whole new level. Separately, they've built extensive rap resumes in south philly. Together, and with philadelphia's Harlan Records, they've combined their life and recording experiences to deliver 17 straight-from-the-streets tracks that pound with asphalt energy. Self-written and self-produced, NO-ID'S brand new LET US IN blends socially conscious tracks ("come up with a plan") with street anthems ("rough get rougher") and odes to love both rhetorical ("black queen") and specific ("shorty wop"). Fiercely independent, NO-ID avoids the pitfalls of hip-hop hype by remaining firmly in control of their medium and their message. (check "the formula" for their no-holds-barred dissection of the music industry's big business crimes) NO-ID has an old-school taste for rent-party-ready hooks and samples, but their danceable beats never overpower their rhymes. Upfront and on the mic, NO-ID brings razor-sharp turns of phrase and streetwise insight to everything from self-proclamation ("hot damn") to day-in-life stand-up routines on the perils of public transit ("crowded trolley"). Hitting with the authenticity that only self-made musical muscle can bring, NO-ID is ready to bring south philly hip-hop to the world.
