Stovetop are uniquely Australian fill a much needed gap their style has developed over time, fusing -India Soul n Groove with Pop Overtones Their tight smooth playing has neatly captured a sound that is distinctive addictive! Richard Thompson wrote-As a songwriter your trying to describe the human condition, you can do that by writing about other people or you can do that by writing about who you are- In either case you get close to the Truth, then its a kind of Universal truth Simon Burkes song writing reveals that hidden Truth. Songs that declare-this is the way of the world, dig deep create a Melodic momentum into the sorry state of Humanity today. kids will die for no good cause Poets will chatter in unknown tongue A prick writes up another useless clause Thinking they are the chosen ones Hearts will crumble tears will fall Others will chuckle behind their backs This is the Way of the World This is the Way of the World Now, Now takes you on a Kaleidoscope journey, twists turns. Shared emotions, Universal heart aching lyrics, memories of Melancholy warm touches of summer breezes still the common thread persists in Now, Now as it always weaves back to the Groove. Tracks like Minor step down- cut through the listeners safe space all of a sudden your dancing, short n sweet reminding you dont know nothing about it at all, who cares, youre lost on the dance floor! And then totally left bare exposed on Get you of my mind A definitive sound, an addictive groove on Cover Me. Simon Burkes voice dripping with Soul reveals a window within, while the band constantly reels you in with the lynch pin guitar work of Sim Martin. Martin renowned for his unique feel guitar seduces the listener with his passion skill leading you to surrender to the distinctive sound that is Stovetop. Its in the Groove that counts!
