An eclectic blend of blues, folk, pop, rock and classical with a twist of renaissance and modern insightful lyrics designed to set your head reeling and heart pounding. 10 MP3 Songs FOLK: Folk-Rock, ROCK: Americana Details: THE BURNING BUSH 2007 With sidelong glances the troubadours sang "Start with a surplus and end with a bang. War was the point, to be in it, not win. To make money, not peace or what could have been." Contagious concerns seemed to drive the crowd wild. The king has no brains. cried the innocent child. True understanding never visited the fool. His father always bought him his way through school. "Follow my lead and you take the blame. Don't mind my excuses are incredibly lame." Level best is what he wanted, Loyal cries from hearts undaunted. The friar just sat and laughed at the rest. But you know his character was never the best. Between sheets of torment came thoughts unbidden, Conflicting doctrine, agendas hidden. So the king ran the country into the ground. The lords and the ladies dare not make a sound. Answers they wanted in the vastness of fears. Seeing ill gotten goods through a veil of tears. And so he sits in his dwindling mask. The rest of the court aren't up to the task. Sacred oaths are tossed away, Here tomorrow but gone today. Paul Hendershott (of Adrian Fringe) People who are interested in Fleetwood Mac The Pretenders Natalie Merchant should consider this download.
