URBAN/R&B: Contemporary urban, URBAN/R&B: R&B Pop Crossover Details: Ready to take you on an adventure, The Christopher Complex emerges onto the music scene with a sound to take your mind and body on a musical journey with the release of his new EP Lets Go. A soulful R&B singer, he uses Funk as his foundation, and borrows styles from other music genres such as jazz, pop, rock, dance from various decades. His lyrical presentation evokes intense emotion while the production of music enhances his feelings onto his listener. He has adopted this spirit from his influences Prince, James Brown, Parliament Funkadelic, The Jacksons, Sly and the Family Stone to name a few, as well as the new greats, DAngelo, Lenny Kravitz and Maxwell. Brooklyn born with Southern roots, The Christopher Complex, not only a singer but a songwriter and producer, is not afraid to take on the mainstream by writing and playing music that record companies are afraid to release: risk taking material that are in their artists catalogs. Hes not concerned about following what is the popular sound. He wants to contribute a new vibration to music. It would be easier to play and sing what everyone else is singing about, but, it doesnt set you apart from the masses. I like to play what I like and just hope that others like it too, he says. This isnt The Christopher Complexs first exposure to the music business. More than a decade ago he began developing his musical talents, style and acumen as a partner in a production company called M.I.C. Entertainment. M.I.C. was a company that managed local R&B singers, Hip Hop and Rap artists. The Complex took on the role of Artist Developer. In this capacity he was the vocal coach and image consultant, wrote and co-wrote the artists songs, did their music productions and handled their song publishing. With no formal training, he taught himself how to play the keyboard, the rhythm, acoustic and bass guitars. Through his company and his self training, he began to cultivate a theory of his sound and understand the music business. With the tools of his trade at his disposal, it was just a matter of time before he would step out on faith and share his sound with the rest of the world. In the past year, he began to get his performance feet wet by performing at caf open mics, at Cornelia Street Caf in Greenwich Village in Manhattan and Solomons Porch Caf in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. Hottie was the first song he introduced himself with as the promotional single. An up tempo pulsating dance track that carries the message of uplifting women and appreciating them for more than their physical attributes. His stage presence and performance instantly pulled the crowd in, which in turn he used to fuel his confidence to keep this music dream going. Serita Eaton, the host of the open mic at Cornelia Street Caf said "WOW! His performance is AMAZING!!!! As long as I have known the person that is The Christopher Complex he's so quiet. Seeing him perform with all of the energy and vibrancy left me speechless. Where did you come from?!" That was enough to let him know that he was on the right track. The release of Lets Go features tracks that you can picture as a walking soundtrack which clearly strikes images in your head of romantic escapades, says an admirer of The Christopher Complex. From rhythmic impulses on the dance floor in Dance With You to the soulful declaration of love-found in Youre the One Ive Been Looking For (All of My Life). Lets Go is a montage of different experiences conjuring up feelings and imaginations most mainstream music has seem to desert in its ingredients. Lets Go dares you to leave all inhibitions at the door and surrender to a new direction in music. The Christopher Complex insists you join him on his journey, discover new musical avenues and reminisce of days of old on how music used to make you feel. Take a quick get away where you can experience the musics groove, its force of subtle seduction, sensuality, romance, fun, free spirited excitement. A well deserved break from the same old day. What are you waiting for? Lets go!
