Vonnell is a student in the University of Miami Frost School of Music whom has dedicated his life to the performing arts. In middle-school, inspired by friends, he began studying piano and saxophone, dreaming of one day becoming a great musician. Vonnell joined Miami Dade Colleges Jazz Big Band as a saxophonist in 2003 and at the same time performed in several piano recitals music by Beethoven and Shumann among others. He formalized his studies as a Jazz Vocalist at the University of Miami Frost School of Music and haunted by his endless ambition and ability to pursue his dreams he decided to solidify himself as an entity within the music industry by studying production, also at the University of Miami. He was invited to perform and produce music for independent films, which immediately caught the attention of its specialized media. In 2003, The Miami Herald's magazine Viernes named him The Promise for 2003. Vonnell is a young man with a lot to say, and even yet, with a lot more to sing wrote one of the newspaper's top writers, Charles Cotayo. Facing difficult, adversity-filled times in the music industry, towards the end of 2004, Vonnell founded his own record label VIMmusic with the help and support of his family giving way to his first production "31 de Febrero". In this project, Vonnell not only acts as Singer/Songwriter/Instrumentalist, but also as Producer side-by-side with Brazilian guitarist Jucimar de Oliveira and Grammy-winner Roberto Morales who produced Vonnells vocals and brought great ideas to the table in songs such as the songs Luna, El Juego del Querer, Cosas del Destino ,and He is a Doctor in the video "Cara de Caramelo." first cut of "31 de Febrero" Vonnell is the most talented artist with whom Ive worked with my entire life says Roberto Morales when asked to describe what it was like working with Vonnell. Influenced by artists such as Billy Joel, David Sanborn, Brazilian greats such as Djavan, Ivan Lins, Csar Camargo Mariano, Milton Nascimento, Spains Alejandro Sanz and Jazz legends Charlie Parker and Art Tatum, Vonnell brings to us with this incredible production, a slight fusion of musics huge pop/rock sound with that of MPB (Brazilian Popular Music) and even a slight touch of Cuban vibe, creating a style which clearly and properly identifies this great musician. When asked to explain the name of his CD, 31 de Febrero (February 31), Vonnell explains: Besides it being the name of one of the songs, I decided to name it 31 de Febrero because I wanted to name the project something as simple as a date but at the same time, something that would evoke thought as a non-existent date naturally would. The multilingual singer/songwriter (who speaks English, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian and French) puts all of himself in this production giving us 5 songs written by him and 6 which he co-wrote with Brazilian guitarist Jucimar de Oliveira ,Brazilian pianist Daniel Fortes, Brazilian songwriters Julio Cesar Gonlaves and Lorena Bezerra. As a composer he is honest; he says and writes what he feels without chasing after specific reactions from a commercial standpoint: When working on a song, I try to communicate with her at a spiritual level to see what shes trying to tell me, to see what it is that she wants and how it is that I can make her happy. What works for me is seeing a song like a woman; I dont try to make her, nor understand her, just love her. says Vonnell when asked what helps him bring such powerful magic and sensuality to his songs. Pure, Raw Talent! ...is what best describes Vonnell, a young Cuban singer/songwriter whos well on his way to the top without letting anything or anyone get in his way. VONNELL is quickly rising to the top in national and international Record Pools. Cara de Caramelo Video, now at Yahoo: search.music.yahoo.com/search/?p=vonnell&m=video&x=18&y=11
