NEW! Golf Guide On How To Improve Your Golf Scores Introduction... Remember what it was like the first time you picked up a golf club? The first time you took a swing at a golf ball? Chances are, if you're like me it was at a driving range. What a fantastic place! Where else can you go and let out your frustrations, by swinging a club at a ball and driving it 200 yards downrange, and have a ton of fun at the same time? That's what getting started with golf was like for me. I went to the driving range two to three times a week and spent hours just having fun. I wasn't thinking about what club I was using, what the best approach to the green would be, or trying to read the green to make birdie with one putt. I was having a blast smashing that little white ball and driving it as far as I could. Then I got the idea that it would be a great time walking all over golf courses chasing that little white ball and trying to put it into a small cup. It sure wasn't just taking a whack anymore. Now it was about strategy and scores. Now it was about choosing which number club to use. What approach do I take in reading my next putt? I love golf, but it was more like operating a business than spending time playing my favorite sport. Decisions, strategies, trying to think two strokes ahead.... it was work. I wasn't relaxed. I didn't feel refreshed after each round. I even started struggling with my scores. Instead of making par or under most of the time, I started finishing with ten to fifteen strokes over. Yikes! But, then I started learning a few things. I started to learn how to get back my joy and lose those extra strokes off my game. Buy Now! Satisfaction Guaranteed!
