Details: When Bo Reynolds was less than two years old, he crawled inside a guitar case fell asleep among the scents of rosewood and creative inspiration. He's been a musician ever since. As a kid growing up in AZ, Bo played the gritty tunes of Charley Pride, Merle Haggard and Johnny Cash. His tastes later drifted towards the styles and stories of Texas songwriters like Willie Nelson, Guy Clark and Townes Van Zandt. Bo was inspired to mix a bit of Mex with his Tex, not knowing that he would soon be living in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico. Performing his songs in a club where many ex-patriots from Texas would come to hear Bo play weekly, telling him that he sounded like a Texan, born and bred. Though he'd never been to Texas, he got there as fast as he could, as they say, and the "Live Musical Capital of the World, Austin, Texas, became his new home. Entrenched in Austin's music scene, Bo released his first CD, OUT In TEXAS, which was awarded 4 1/2 stars by Texas Music Roundup. Bo played all of the highly respected and well-known singer songwriter venues such as Threadgill's, the Cactus Cafe, the Austin Capital 10k (for 4 consecutive years), The Austin Fine Arts Festival and the famous Texas Picnic at the Governors Mansion. Bo has been featured on the widely acclaimed KUT's Folkways Radio Show and the #1 station in Austin, KGSR, as well as being featured a number of times in Texas Music Magazine, Fox Morning Show and The Austin Chronicle. Bo played 3-5 nights a week regularly over the 8 years that he lived in Austin. Looking for new inspiration and experiences to write about, Bo packed up his 1945 Martin guitar and moved to Central Oregon in 2005. Since moving to Oregon, Bo has been written up in the Bend Bulletin's Go Magazine, The Source Magazine and featured on Bend's KLRR radio. He performs regularly at many of the music venues in Bend, Redmond and Sunriver. These include the Sunriver Music on the Greens, The Four Peaks Festival, The Deschutes County Fair and the annual "Evening for the Environment" sponsored by the Central Oregon Environmental Center. Bo performs as a solo artist, with the Bo Reynolds Band and with the well known local band, Little Fish. Bo Reynolds' new CD, CASCADE DEVILLE, celebrates Oregon and the Pacific Northwest's unique culture of small coastal towns, urban life and the mountain range for which the CD is named, all flavored with Bo's unique Americana folk style. for booking contact deb yager: baby blue productions @ 512-771-0118 or 541-383-9065 deb@babyblueproductions.com
