After many years of honing his craft and teaching others, Jesse Foster has finally released the musical offering that those of us that know him have been waiting for. Born in Bessimer, Alabama and raised in Cleveland Ohio, Jesse recognized his musical calling at an early age and pursued his own natural course of study, by receiving formal training and absorbing influences from other great artists. He is a singer, songwriter and percussionist extraordinaire, with an original composition and arranging style, which conveys deep and personal messages through songs crossing a wide range of musical genres. Although Jesse has worked with and been influenced by many renowned artists, he credits the body of works by master artists like Wes Montgomery, Marvin Gaye, John Coltrane, Smokey Robinson, David Ruffin, Nat "King" Cole and Miles Davis, for having a profound impact on his concepts, musical direction and career. In the seventies Jesse's travels brought him to San Francisco where for over thirty years now, his writing performing and teaching has received international acclaim and earned him a special place amongst the unsung heroes of the music scene. Jesse views life as a series of segways, living moment to moment and song to song, never knowing what will happen, but possessing relentless drive and undying faith in his mission.
