The title tune Songwe kits in some post-Go-Go-Swing while dancing in solid direction and expanding its universe. The groove is smart and straightforward. You Ought Ta Be With Me another medium groove goes into subtle harmonic and rhythm changes in its comfort zone. A change of pace is presented with Sol Fu Yo. Melody with percussion ensemble gives it a ethnic edge while transforming growth consciousness. Beautifully space and time crafted in supple unison to support an up-tempo movement suggesting the degree of openness. Forever Yours seems to sparkle with a touch of sweetness and alluring persona inviting you to explore emotional realms. Sikolele is heart and soul capturing a simple groove. It simply strong, as it reaches for its connection to embrace the musicality. Once it arises with life energy it shifts into fluttering spurts from the flute, with encouraging ostinato rhythm section non-stopping to the songs essence. Another ballad emerges with I Will Stand With You with full orchestration efforts surrounding a melodic formation that exuberates commitment. A Love So Sweet invites you to explore the mystery in the sound. The flute sings brightly and confidently and then the next movement compliments before returning to the theme. So whats next, surprisingly the acoustic piano come in to dominate the moment. Soulfully giving depth and body in concluding the song and Songwes spirit of sound.
