Details: no:carrier was founded by Stefan Ritter and Christian Wirsig in the summer 1995 under the name of Fast Delay. After writing many lyrics and composing music, the first songs were recorded later that year but weren't released until the band re-recorded some of them under the new name no:carrier in 1996. The first demo-tape called death:row was released in fall 1996. In winter 1996 Stefan Ritter decided to get out of the project so the development of no:carrier was delayed. But in autumn 1997 the second tape processing was released as a solo project. In 2001 no:carrier was joined by Cynthia Wechselberger. She's an outstanding singer and builds the ideal counterpart to Christian's distorted spoken vocals. In March 2002 the debut-CD "My Own Dream" was released by German label Electric Heresy and gained a lot of very good reviews. But although Electric Heresy had a distribution deal with a German distributor not much copies did hit the big shops. Apart from that the CD was still a success for the band and the label. After Electric Heresy closed its doors in September 2003, no:carrier signed a contract with electric stars, a label that is distributed throughout Europe by Alive. The album has been be re-released in autumn 2003 with a new cover but without the booklet and lyrics. Since its re-opening 2007, "My Own Dream" is available in its original form including the 8 page booklet with lyrics. Currently Cynthia and Christian are working on new material that should be released on the forthcoming album "Between The Chairs" as well as on different free virtual singles with bonustracks...
