A highly unique, deeply spiritual voyage, this cantata combines The Luminous World Orchestra with a heavenly choir singing profound, ancient Sanskrit chants. 9 MP3 Songs in this album (53:13) ! Related styles: NEW AGE: Neo-Classical, CLASSICAL: Choral Music Details: Threading the Ether is a unique animal, difficult to categorize. You'll hear the familiar Luminous World Orchestra sound where the soothing, undulating textures and majestic warmth of a Symphony Orchestra, combined with the gentle, lyrical melodies of instruments from all corners of the world, resonate together in a blissful interplay of sound. In Threading the Ether, a choir is added to the orchestra. But what's most different from the other Luminous World Orchestra recordings where there is a highly distilled simplicity and a great holding back of passions, "Threading the Ether" is a deeply personal piece fraught with longing and deep spiritual feeling. Threading the Ether contains more counterpoint and complexity of texture, and the emotional palate is wider. This piece is still softly contemplative, but simply more stops have been pulled out. As always, the colors of The Luminous World Orchestra range from the velvety strings of violins, cellos, and Chinese Erhu fiddle, to the sweet breathy tones of Japanese and Native American flutes, from delicately plucked guitar and harp to the round, ringing vibrations of Balinese Gamelan gongs... ...a sweetly colorful, meditative journey. The unique music of The Luminous World Orchestra, led by film composer Steven Chesne, is spiritually inspiring, and gently empowering.
