He is a 1996 grad of Sherrard High School, and currently lives in Los Angeles. As a child, his parents wouldn't allow him to listen to the radio or purchase music of his own. Then one day Willie found a box of his father's old "Beach Boys" records which filled an enormous musical void. This was when he started playing the guitar along with the piano lessons his parents had him taking. Around the age of fourteen, Willie realized the guitar was going to be his instrument of choice. So, he told his mother that the piano lessons had to stop and started writing songs on the guitar. He soon got his first real job at Menards (hardware store) would always find time to drop by the record store on the way home. In the beginning stages of his songwriting, he emulated comical musicians like "Adam Sandler" and "The Presidents of the United States". Then in the early 90's he discovered "The Beatles" and began to do covers and to write closer to their style. Not long after, the "Smashing Pumpkins" album "Siamese Dream" was released and Willie found that to be the music to change everything for him. "Stone Temple Pilots", "Radiohead", "Beck" and many more became the staple of Willie's musical diet. His writing reflects these bands, but he also incorporates his love for melodic ballads by adding a little "Muse", "U2", "Coldplay" flavor to the mix. Willie has developed his very own style of organic, heartfelt beach-rock that really shows off his unique personality.
