ROCK: Modern Rock, FOLK: Folk Pop Details: Jeff Stone completed a trilogy of albums (35 songs) in September of 2003. Toronto songwriters such as Kat Goldman and Rich Lowenberg are calling it "brilliant"; songwriter Tom Glenne is calling it "one of the most inspirational recordings I've heard in a while"; and songwriter Todd Harrison is calling the trilogy "all killer, no filler". Jeff is a songwriter, arranger, producer, vocalist, guitarist, and bassist. His new albums, "One of a Trilogy", "Life, Death, Love, Hate, Hope, and Bad Apartments", and "Three of a Trilogy", join his first album, "I'm Not", in his discography. Jeff has toured Canada, playing shows in the Northwest Territories and nine of ten provinces. He has performed on live television as a solo act in Edmonton (Wired, A-Channel), live and live-to-tape on radio stations such as CIUT Toronto, CKDU Halifax, CJSR Edmonton, CHUO Ottawa, and he went top-10 on CKLU Sudbury's chart. He has performed in two festivals (The Om Festival, Killaloe, Ontario, 2002, and the Festival of the Midnight Sun, Yellowknife, 1998). Six different Toronto acts have covered five of Jeff's songs in live performances; and one of these artists recorded a song of his. He is a regular host and performer at the Free Times Cafe in Toronto, and has also written for and performed in musical theatre (Lost Carnival's "Death's Diner", "Waterworks" and "War - The Musical"). Performing using both acoustic and electric guitars, Jeff joins with electronic mixes of his tunes in a show of high energy. He also does entirely acoustic shows.
