Well-crafted songs combined with sweeping dynamics and superb musicianship has brought the group the local and regional success it has enjoyed. The core members lead by Tennis Mounts were brought together in their high school years with a common interest in creating the signature style GR is now known for. "I spent a lot of time in other bands playing drums and really listening to all of the elements of a song," says Mounts. "I realized later how much I must have sub-consciously soaked up when I started writing my own tunes. They came so easily; they literally wrote themselves." Following his lead, Jason Coulter (drums), and Adam Nurre (bass) rounded out the sound, bringing both a personal and musical dynamic rarely found in bands today. Described as "...commercially accessible..." and "Radio friendly...", GR managed to court the interest of Chad Taylor (Live), Adam Kontis (co-owner of Moon Tree Studios), John Curley (Afghan Whigs) and Phil Schuster (Live, Ramones). This interest quickly formed into a group effort, resulting in an incredibly strong, well-produced set of songs for the tentatively titled CD "Calling You". As the band's relationship continues to flourish with the help of these industry veterans, they can do nothing but continue their steady climb up to commercial success. "I've had one goal my whole life," Mounts states, "and that is to create and play music for a living. There is a plan for everything, and we have achieved so much over the past couple of years that it is hard to think there is any other plan for us." One thing is certain; Gerald's Rainbow is a band that has proven success can be had no matter what the odds. As Cincinnati continues to thrive in it's recent Esquire magazine #7 placement of "Cities That Rock" (Local music), Gerald's Rainbow will be one of the bands that brings about local, regional and national recognition by continuing their energetic pursuit of music.
