REVIEWS... "... A beautiful instrumental guitar journey that certainly was recorded for the thoughtful and discriminating listeners of the world. The ten songs all contain singable and melodic-filled lines, with rhythmic and soulful percussive treatment. Albums like this are what smooth jazz and adult contemporary programmers will fill their playlists with -- if they're wise." - Kayonne Riley, General Manager, WUCF/NPR Jazz 89.9, Orlando "A highly recommended sonic feast for the ears that not only ages like fine wine with each listen but also spans a broad stylistic repertoire from tuneful ballad's to kick butt grooves. Turn up the heat and get "Stirred", this is a five star recipe from a master chef with an incredible palette of tasty ear candy." - Bear, Host/Producer "New Age Sampler" WWSP 90FM, Stephen's Point, WI "The natural world breathes through this music. It's world music touched by jazz, blues, and the occasional Latin beat. Condon's guitar and Marsden's piano sing beautifully together." - Jennifer Layton, indie-music.com "There is no doubt that it's very pleasurable to immerse oneself completely into the CD... Each of the 10 cuts stands out on it's own, particularly during the guitar solos, which collectively melt the heart and stir the senses of any avid acoustic guitar buff." - Tamara Drew, This Week Magazine "Robert Condon's album, Stirred, draws on worldwide influences to entice the listener in and allows them to escape. The guitar motifs weave an interesting selection of rhythmic ideas. Some of the writing is evocative of Andreas Vollenweider at his creative peak." - Charlie Morgan, Drummer (Elton John, Tina Turner, Paul McCartney) "Stirred features ten instrumental tracks which could be classified as new age or smooth jazz (Russ Freeman and Craig Chaquico are artists that are similar compositionally) but that also offer solo sections reminiscent of guitarists such as Carlos Santana ("So Divine") and Larry Carlton ("Would You Fall"). Condon displays formidable talent, both as an electric/acoustic guitarist and as a producer/arranger; Stirred will certainly appeal to a broad range of fans that follow the guitarists listed above. Keep your ears open for more from Mr. Condon." - Guitar9Review
