Details: Tucker Livingston is a singer and songwriter, born into a family of artists and musicians. Along with pursuing a solo career, he has collaborated and toured with his father since 1998 traveling throughout Asia, Africa and the Middle East on grants from the U.S. Government to act as an official United States Ambassador of American music. In the spring of 2003, Tucker entered and won the Austin Music Foundation's Incubator program, which provides artists a grant to create and market a recorded work. Soon after recording and releasing this album, Ballet Austin choreographed their 2004 Winter Ballet to its music in performances at Austin's own Paramount Theatre. On Apples iTunes online music store, Tuckers self-titled debut CD reached the 6th most internationally downloaded folk artist album. Tucker Livingston has been a featured artist at The Austin City Limits Music Festival, Kerrville Folk Festival and Voice of America, and continues to perform in Texas and around the world. "The most mature artist of the Austin second generation crowd, bringing to mind the delicacy and depth of the late great Nick Drake." - Rob Patterson, Country Music People Magazine "There's alot of duality in Tucker's music...he's quickly made a name for himself in Austin." -Andy Langer, music journalist, News 8 Austin "Unique and way beyond his years- destined for greatness." - Lloyd Maines, Grammy Winning Producer "A true original, in a musical world all his own." - Jerry Jeff Walker, Singer/Songwriter
