He is inspired daily by the work and lives of songwriters such as Kris Kristofferson, Townes Van Zandt, and Neil Young. Nathan likes to drive, smokes a lot, and enjoys sprawling out on a 10-foot black couch in the late morning hours reading Richard Brautigan. ----- Swiftly, Surely, a 7-song mini LP released in August 2007 on the artists own imprint awwrats, is a collection of songs written and performed by Nathan Xander since winter 2006. The album was recorded with percussion from Evan Hydzik of Chicago's Pillars and Tongues. A solo tour through the northeast and southern United States during August and September 2007 included stops in Memphis, Boston, and the District of Columbia. Another tour of the east and midwest is being planned for spring 2008. Swiftly, Surely draws inspiration from On the Beach Era Neil Young, Gram Parsons Cosmic American music and Dylans thin wild mercury sound and finds itself somewhere in between.
