He plays over 40 instruments and writes virtually all styles of music. He received formal training on trumpet, flute and voice as a child, and went on to master several other instruments on his own. He majored in Theory/Composition of Music at the Dana School of Music in Ohio, but left disillusioned by their lack of any interest in teaching Eastern Music. On Reflection, Paul's love of Eastern modalities is beautifully blended with traditional Western musical forms, resulting in a very accessible, and meditative recording. *****

REVIEWS "Cornell's work is outstanding...the sound is gorgeous...deeply enchanting, mesmerizing music." -Sweet Potato Maine's Music Magazine "The music is packed with emotion, with wonderfully melodic harmonies and gently catchy melodies. I appreciate the high quality of this music; musically, spiritually and emotionally. Recommended!" -Heartsong Review "Paul's vulnerability in exposing himself in all of his compositions is his paradoxical strength, making him a believable, accessible performer." -Portland Evening Express
