Details: Keyboardist and composer Sebastian Lorefice has been an active and well respected member of Australias musical community. Based in Melbourne his career has encapsulated two streams of achievement. The first, a career as an educator and academic that has spanned a decade. The second as a performer and composer that began in the early eighties. As a branch of this production company he has welcomed and encouraged the input of outside collaborators or composers. One of them is Peter Sinis, who Sebastian met in the late eighties and befriended, while teaching at Preston T.A.F.E. college. As a student Peter was studying music and completing a 2 year popular music course. Later Peter was also successful in completing the Batchelor Of Education course at Melbourne University. Both courses steeped in the disciplines, of understanding and mastering the very essentials of music theory, history and ensemble playing. The completion of these courses were a good grounding for Peter Sinis. Even as a student (in the early to mid nineties) Peter had recorded and composed a series of pop songs with singer Richard Lovegrove. A style and approach was developing that was exciting. The decision to work together came after a phone call in the early stages of the new millennium, where a fruitful discussion emanated and a collaborative friendship was born. The compact disc album featured here Adventures In Westgarth, The Toyland Sessions is partly a result of collaborations between Peter Sinis and Sebastian Lorefice. Five of the compositions are a result of these collaborations. They are: Somebody Please Send Me Somebody To Love; Ill Sing It In My Song; Sexy Hotty; After All This Time and Im Ready For Love.

These five compositions were written by Peter but arranged by Sebastian. All recordings occurring between the years 2004 and 2008 at Toyland Studios in Westgarth which is in the northern suburbs of Melbourne. The other five tracks have been composed and arranged by Sebastian Lorefice. Singer actor and performer, Brandon Burns is featured in all but the last track. Timeless features singer, composer and performer, Michael Macri. Tags: pop
