You get 'Change We Must.' We were in the studio one day, two friends hanging out, just talking about how the souring economy is directly affecting our lives and families, how we feel weve been deceived by the powers that be, and how there should be a song about it, says composer Bill Bressler. Thus began a collaboration between the two musicians that felt so rewarding, they formed A Band Called Everything, a name based on their versatile musical backgrounds. A Band Called Everything is New York composers Bill Bressler and Jeremy Abbate. They acquired the vocal talents of Jo Cunningham and Anne Wall to sing their message of cynicism and hope. This song is an anthem for all of us, from every background, written to reach every iPod in America.
