Ive heard its better to share one experience than list several. So let me give you what I consider one of the turning points of my musical path to date. Its about what happened in a dream. There, I was listening to a radio program and hearing the most beautiful music Id ever heard. It was so moving it held me in awe and exhilaration. When I awoke, the melody was completely gone, yet the euphoric feeling remained; and though I tried to remember even the smallest part, I couldnt. Even though I sincerely wished I could have had the music to keep, I was grateful for hearing it at all! A few moments later came the insight that changed my musical path. I was trying to remember what Id heard by going over the details of the dream, when I realized the radio was just a way for the music to catch my attention. And here was the turning point -- because the radio was a product of my mind, the music must have been too. It was my music! Soon the question of who or what put it there arose, but thats a mystery better left to the theologians. Because of that experience, I began adding a lot more orchestration to my music. I now accept the music without need to verify quality. (After all it had been on the radio!) As you listen to samples here, be sure to check Autumns Glory and Evening Prayer from the CD titled Timely... or from the CD titled Gently... listen to Clouds. And please, help this music make a difference by supporting it now with your purchase and then introducing it to others. People who are interested in should consider this download.
