Currently the curriculum is being sold throughout North America. Brian also holds three US Patents for the development of a series of custom designed performance stands which support the entire line of Clay Udu Drums. Diverse Elements features 12 tracks; 6 of which are solo performances and 6 are duets. The concept of the duets was to simply create the music by taking turns coloring with our own individual musical voices. There was no outline, form or arrangement although in most cases I did present a rhythm music track just to get the ball rolling. We had no idea where we were going but we most certainly knew when we were finished. The idea came out of a simple activity I used to do when my children were very young to keep them occupied and not bored say at a restaurant waiting for our dinner. We would have a blank sheet of paper and coloring tools. We were only allowed one color at a time and only allowed to create one thing each turn. We would then continue to take turns until our creation came to fruition. Very exciting way to collaborate together. Try it!
