Details: Harley String Band is: Three talented singer-songwriters who mine the deep veins of American music and bring back the occasional rough diamond. Supporting each other on a wide variety of acoustic instruments, they aspire to breathe new life and fresh ideas into traditional musical forms. All three band members have won honors in the prestigious Mid-Atlantic Songwriting Contest. Their new CD, Didn't Come to Stay Long elaborates on the sin and misery theme the band is known for. Guantanamo, which has been featured on NPR stations, is a subversive volley in the culture war. The Pride of the White Star Line represents a classic folk telling of the sinking of the Titanic, while Living Lives Apart provides a weirdly upbeat take on divorce. In contrast, Thank You for Calling PizzaCo offers a humorous perspective on privacy rights.
